

The Beginning:

The International Medical and Educational Trust is a non-profit charitable organization, conceived by Dr. Arshad Husain, M.D. a deeply devoted child psychiatrist and social activist, registered in Karachi, Pakistan. The funds are drawn from donations from various sources. IMET envision is to serve the medical and educational needs of under privileged communities.

IMET's Philosophy

We believe that: Health is not merely an absence of disease, rather it is optimal well-being and Primary health care should be available to all regardless of their ability to pay. Each individual should be treated with dignity, respect and confidentiality in any health care system. The cost of achieving and preserving health is a shared responsibility of both public and private sector.

Our Mission

We responded to: Serve individuals of all ages by providing health care according to the principals of primary and secondary prevention, including the management of chronic illness and old age.

Adult Education

IMET has initiated an adult education program at the clinic's premises. IMET also plans to establish a training program for physician assistants and nurse practitioners who will work at the out reach clinics in the under served communities of Karachi city.

Continued Medical Education

IMET runs Continued Medical Education programs routinely for physician ad mental health professionals.

Shared Responsibilities

We at IMET feel that the cost of achieving and preserving health care is a shared responsibility of both individuals and organizations; we therefore encourage networking with other organization and individuals for the common goal of improving health can education of the community.
